

Or am I just one more airhead in a plastic hot tub on a Central Valley Tule fog moonlight night tossing off a chlorine-ed micro brew?
 I do try hard to do

H Every little thing A
 You're supposed to do.

E I do every thing to be seen L
 On TV, in a movie, or a magazine

S From put my shades up on my hair I
 To put a pot of yellow tulips on my stair,
 A Bougainvillea on my drive; I am no fool;

A I have a hot tub; I have a child. I wash with a loufa- F
 A cat. A bird. A coffee table. A big book. A dreamer.
 I wish Jack drove a Mercedes and I drove a Beamer.

A I believe The Lord God Jesus Christ is my Redeemer. O
 Since my implants, I like to wear a tight sweat^{er}.

N It never hurt a girl to look a little better.
 My brand new vanity plate is IYESIS R
 I am no fool. I pay extra for my dresses.

T You know how ugly night work stresses is.
 We've moved to near a really good school. N
 I am a conservative. I keep the golden rule.

A The best cocktail waitress in The Glassy Tule, I
 I make 100 a night tips plus the minimum wage.
 Jack is an airhead. He watches football in a rage. I
 He's 24. He's a turkey. He don't really act like a ge.

If I catch him with my little girl, I'll kill the S.O.B. A
 I caught him peeking in the shower window at me.

I caught him with my Nikes busy as a dirty little busy bee.
 "What are you doing, Jack?" I screamed. I have lived my life with no regret;

Well, I can't get into my Victoria's Secrets yet.
 Well, when I'm all alone in my Corolla, I sigh.
 Before I know it, I can't help it; I always cry.
 It's so hard to get happiness to come to me. G

No Stars shine bright on shatter light. Laid back or uptight or end to end, matter how hard they try, going north or going south, A
 Saints and stars feel forever fire lack.

Thee. The. The. The. The. That's don't give up little saint; you never know; you may well
 Indeed one day wear sweet lockets sent up in high-strung fairs by crystal rockets.
 One night a stone throw in your hot tub T
 May become star laughing up your back, folks.